Profile

Daniel has developed a comprehensive perspective on antitrust law through his experience at leading law firms and multinational companies. This diverse background has enabled him to approach the field from multiple angles, combining strong legal and technical expertise with a strategic business mindset to effectively manage antitrust compliance risks.

Throughout his career, Daniel has contributed to a wide range of competition law and compliance initiatives, including contract reviews, business training programs, monitoring regulatory commitments, and providing legal support for commercial operations. His experience allows him to translate complex regulatory requirements into practical, business-oriented solutions that support informed decision-making and foster a strong culture of compliance across organizations.

Studies:

- Law degree (J.D. equivalent), Universidad Anáhuac México Norte, Mexico City

His working languages are Spanish and English.

Experience

Daniel has built his professional experience in the field of antitrust law, with a particular focus on merger control and merger notification procedures.

He has assisted in the representation of economic agents in domestic and cross-border transactions before the Mexican Federal Economic Competition Commission (COFECE) and the National Antimonopoly Commission. His experience includes matters involving cartel and abuse of dominance investigations, leniency applications, merger control filings, and the development and implementation of corporate antitrust compliance programs.

Daniel also has in-house experience in antitrust compliance within multinational companies, where he has contributed to the implementation of strategies and processes aimed at ensuring compliance with competition law obligations and regulatory commitments. His work has included supporting compliance initiatives, monitoring regulatory obligations, and promoting a strong culture of competition law compliance across business operations.
