Profile

His practice specializes in the tax structuring of highly complex local and cross-border transactions, including mergers and acquisitions, corporate reorganizations, and financing structures. He has a solid track record of advising clients on tax risk mitigation and the optimization of complex business operations. Furthermore, Eduardo possesses extensive experience in defending corporate interests in contentious and non-contentious proceedings before the Tax Administration, the Tax Court and the Judiciary.

Studies:

- Lawyer, Pontificia Universidad Católica del Perú (2013).

His working languages are Spanish and English.

Experience

His practice focuses on the design and implementation of tax structures for complex corporate transactions, including large-scale reorganizations, asset segregation, and the consolidation of family holdings under tax-neutral regimes. He has led the tax planning for major acquisitions and high-impact projects, managing tax optimization through strategies that ensure the economic substance of the operation in compliance with anti-avoidance regulations and joint liability risks. His comprehensive approach provides legal certainty to each transaction, effectively mitigating contingencies in the transfer of assets, real estate, and contracts in both local and cross-border operations.

In the contentious arena, he possesses a solid track record in defending corporate interests before the Tax Administration, the Tax Court, and the Judiciary. He has led successful legal strategies in highly complex audit processes, achieving the validation of international expenses and the reversal of arbitrary tax assessments. Furthermore, he has extensive experience in obtaining favorable final rulings through the application of legal stability agreements and in handling strategic litigation regarding sector-specific taxes.

Academic and Publishing Collaborations

He has experience as a teaching assistant for Tax Law courses at the Faculty of Law of the Pontificia

Universidad Católica del Perú.
