Appendix III

Portugal

Pérez-Llorca entered the Portuguese market in 2023.

The purpose of this Appendix is to set out the specific terminology and applicable regulations in Portugal in relation to the matters governed by this Code of Ethics, in order to facilitate its correct interpretation and application by Members of the Firm who carry out their activity in that jurisdiction. Given the regulatory and linguistic particularities of each jurisdiction in which the Firm operates, certain concepts, policies and procedures have names that differ from those used in Spanish legislation.

This Appendix establishes the necessary terminological equivalences and details the specific regulatory references applicable in Portugal, thereby ensuring consistency in the use of terms and full compliance with current local regulations.

The provisions contained in this Code of Ethics must be interpreted together with the provisions of this Appendix, with local terminology and regulations prevailing in all cases where required by the legislation applicable in Portugal.

- With regard to the professional codes of practice rules governing the practice of law in Portugal, the following should be noted:
 - (i) Estatuto da Ordem dos Advogados, approved by Law No. 145/2015 of 9 September; and
 - (ii) Code of Conduct for European Lawyers, adopted at the plenary session of the Council of Bars and Law Societies of Europe (CCBE) held on 28 October 1988.
- Regarding breaches of this Code of Ethics, the following terminology applies in the context of employment relationships:

Employees are referred to as “funcionários”.

Lawyers are referred to as “advogados”.

In Portugal, breach of the obligations under this Code of Ethics is classified as a “breach of obligations arising from the provision of services”. For employees, breach of this Code of Ethics amounts to a “breach of employment obligations”; for partners, to a “breach of corporate obligations”; and for third parties/collaborators, to a “breach of commercial obligations”.

For consistency, the following terminological adjustments are made:

- (i) In the section on gender equality, the Spanish term “relaciones laborales” is replaced in Portugal by “relações de trabalho”.
- (ii) In occupational risk prevention, Portugal distinguishes between “labour risks” (applicable to employees) and “work risks” (applicable to lawyers).

- In the section on Gifts and Courtesies, the term “allegados” (close associates) is replaced in Portugal by “terceiros” (third parties), in line with the Portuguese Criminal Code provision on the crime of receipt or offer of undue advantage.
- Prevention of money laundering and financing of terrorism:
- In Portugal, the contact person is the representative before the Ordem dos Advogados (Portuguese Bar Association) – instead of the Representative before SEPBLAC – who acts as the liaison with that body and is responsible for ensuring compliance with the obligations laid down in the money-laundering prevention law and the regulations applicable to lawyers in Portugal.
- Crime prevention:
 - (i) In Portugal, the General Regime for the Prevention of Corruption (“RGPC”) applies to legal persons headquartered in Portugal and to branches in national territory of legal persons headquartered abroad, provided they employ 50 or more workers. The sanctioning regime for such entities entered into force in June 2024.

Regardless of whether the Pérez-Llorca branch in Portugal falls within this threshold, Pérez-Llorca Portugal S.L.P. – Sucursal em Portugal voluntarily adopts compliance with the RGPC. The three main preventive measures against corruption are:

- Adoption of a regulatory compliance programme;
- Implementation of internal control procedures relating to compliance with that programme; and
- Carrying out prior risk assessment procedures in relation to third parties.

The compliance programme, which is the responsibility of the management body, must include at least:

- A corruption and related offences risk prevention plan applicable in Portugal, aimed at identifying, analysing and classifying corruption and related criminal risks and implementing measures to reduce the likelihood of their occurrence and mitigate their impact;
- A code of conduct (corresponding to the Anti-Corruption Policy);
- A training programme for all Members of the Firm so that they are aware of and understand the corruption and related offences prevention policies and procedures implemented;

A whistleblowing channel that guarantees protection measures for whistleblowers (the “Ethics Channel”):

In Portugal, written communications sent by post must be addressed to: Pérez-Llorca Portugal, S.L.P. – Sucursal em Portugal; Rua Barata Salgueiro, n.º 21, 1250-141 Lisboa; Attention: Responsible for Regulatory Compliance.

For communications made by telephone or voicemail system, the call should be made to the Secretary of the Compliance Committee using the number indicated in the Internal Reporting System Policy and Information Management Procedure (+34 660 082 764).

The RGPC also requires the appointment of a regulatory compliance officer (already in place at the Portugal branch), who acts in accordance with its own internal rules.

- (ii) The Criminal Risk Prevention Programme shall be reviewed every 3 years or whenever significant changes occur that require its update.
- Data protection: The Spanish Data Protection Agency (AEPD) corresponds in Portugal to the CNPD (Comissão Nacional de Proteção de Dados) – National Data Protection Commission.
